

MBBS Doctors: Attractive Opportunity to Start General Practice without Investment (Near Delhi)

The INCLLEN Trust International is an international 'not for profit' academic research organization with its global head quarter at New Delhi (www.inclentrust.org).

INCLLEN is actively engaged in policy and program relevant research programs of major public health significance. As part of its strategy to develop sustainable novel health delivery packages in under served areas, two rural populations in District Palwal (Haryana) and District Gautam Buddh Nagar (Uttar Pradesh) have been identified.

Both the rural populations are 70-80kms from Delhi and have no formally trained general practioner in the area. Both populations have excellent connectivity with metalled roads and proximity to district headquarters (\approx 25kms).

INCLLEN will setup fully furnished health clinics at the rate of approximately one GP clinic per 20,000 populations in these two areas.

The incumbents, formally trained doctors (MBBS) will run these clinics with technical support and quality assurance from INCLLEN. An assured monthly remuneration will be provided by INCLLEN for the doctor and the support staff from the beginning. Soon after the clinic operations become financially sustainable, its ownership will be transferred to the doctor without any financial obligations.

Are you a doctor who wants to serve underserved rural populations and desires to have own practice, but doesn't have the finances, doesn't want to take risk of setting up a general practice and want the benefit of both urban living and rural services? If yes, let us discuss the opportunity!!
